We owe a great debt of gratitude to the groups and individuals who provided help and support for this project. We would like to thank the staff at the Wyner Family Jewish Heritage Center at the New England Historic Genealogical Society, who diligently identified relevant archival records and digitized many of the documents and images that appear in this exhibit. Thanks to the dedicated work of the language experts at Language Connections, we were able to translate and transcribe the interviews that provide the backbone of this oral history project. We greatly appreciate the work of Yulia Zhorov, who designed the exhibit, and Sara Arnold, who edited the exhibit's panels and captions. We extend our gratitude to Zelda Kaplan, Zinaida Yezavit, and others who connected us with the individuals whose stories are displayed in the exhibit. We also wish to thank Boris Penson, who shared his story with us and generously allowed us to display his sketches, and Anat Zalmanson-Kuznetsov, who shared information about her parents and the Leningrad Trial. Finally, we offer our sincerest and deepest thanks to all the Russian-speaking immigrants who opened their doors to us and shared their immigration stories. This exhibit is dedicated to them – women, men, and children who defied restrictions and persecution and made great sacrifices to seek a better future in the United States – and to all those who welcomed them and helped them build a new life in the Boston area.
