Dear Miss McGlynn,

Hello again! I'm still here in Syracuse, but how come I don't know. Right now I'm a very likely candidate for an insane asylum. We have just had exams in all of our subjects except English. The only one that I know I did well in was history. I think probably last year I must have really learned the right way to study "all da stuff dat insta very" to quote one of my fellow students from New Jersey. (He has trouble with English, I can't guess why.) So anyway I am now recuperating from the "exams."

This city offers memrone and pleasant diversions for soldiers. This Sunday (1) I went to dinner as the home of a man who happened to know Pres. Sullivan. The man has alone a lot of work for, and is now working for the "A.C.E."

I had a very interesting talk with him about the merits of different colleges in different parts of the country and the merits of Teachers Colleges etc. He also had a very attractive eighteen year old daughter, but of course I was much more interested in talking about education. (?)

This morning I read a rather humorous article in the undergraduate duty paper. I hope some of the girls from Salem will ever run into difficulties such as those mentioned in the article.

It is now 8:15 and time to hit the books again so I will sign off merely saying,

Feeblely yours,
Joe Allen (2)
